

Contents

1	Introduction	8
2	Constructing (global) democracy in citizen engagement practices: designing across situations 20
2.1	Introduction	20
2.2	Democracy as situated practices: Empirical-constructivist studies of democracy	31
2.3	A facilitating framework: (Re)constructing democracy	46
2.4	Alternative imaginaries of democracy competing for their realization	50
3	Standardizing citizen engagement practices: Two modes of ordering	67
3.1	Introduction	67
3.2	A standardization perspective on citizen engagement instruments	70
3.3	Standards and rules in neo-institutionalist sociology of organization	75
3.3.1	Introduction to neo-institutionalist sociology of organization	76
3.3.2	Introduction to the Scandinavian neo-institutionalism	81
3.3.3	Standardization as rule-setting and rule-adoption	86
3.4	Standards and boundary objects in symbolic interactionist accounts of science studies... 93
3.4.1	Introduction to symbolic interactionist accounts of science studies	94
3.4.2	Standardization as categorizing and naturalizing	97
3.4.3	Ordering by boundary objects	103
3.5	Summary: Two modes of ordering in standardization attempts of transnational citizen engagements	109
3.6	Outlook: Micro-politics in attempts of constructing transnational public engagement practices	117
4	Research approach	126
4.1	Research questions	126
4.2	Case study design and case selection	130
4.3	Research strategies	132
4.4	Data collection and analysis	137
5	Formation of a standard: Attempts of installing a transnational citizen engagement instrument 140
5.1	Introduction	140

5.2	Standard formation: DBT's attempts to set a standard for transnational citizen engagement instruments	141
5.3	Consortium for the implementation of World Wide Views on Biodiversity.....	150
5.4	Global design.....	160
5.5	Conclusions	172
6	Constructing representation: Citizen selection and recruitment.....	175
6.1	Introduction	175
6.2	Fixing an instrument component.....	176
6.3	Instructions for replications	181
6.4	Adopting an instrument component	186
6.5	Conclusions	196
7	Constructing deliberation: Structuring dialogue and citizens' views.....	199
7.1	Introduction	199
7.2	Fixing an instrument component.....	200
7.3	Instructing for replications	204
7.4	Adopting an instrument component	208
7.5	Conclusions	215
8	Constructing the issue at stake: Setting the agenda and providing information about global biodiversity.....	216
8.1	Introduction	217
8.2	Fixing instrument components	218
8.3	Instructing for replications	228
8.4	Adopting instrument components.....	233
8.5	Conclusion.....	243
9	Conclusions	246
9.1	Introduction	246
9.2	Emergence and standardization attempts of transnational citizen engagement instruments 250
9.2.1	Establishing and keeping stabilized forms of the transnational instrument: Orchestrating integrity and functionality in standard implementations	251
9.2.2	Modes of ordering heterogeneity and coordinating variance: Interplay of boundary objects and rules	257

9.3	Micro-politics of constructing visions of democracy in transnational citizen engagement instruments	266
9.3.1	Performative power of transnational citizen engagement instruments	268
9.3.2	Rivalry of visions of global democracy.....	269
9.3.3	Forms of conflict and their resolutions.....	273
13.4	Outlook and implications: Micro-politics in constructing global democracy	274
10	References	275
	Annex 1: Data Collection.....	295
	Annex 2: Data Analysis.....	295