Table of Contents

Zusammenfassung IX
Abstract XI
Preface XIII

1 Introduction 1

Rethinking Monospace 2
A Realist Account on Architectural Space 10
A Current Debate: Architecture and the Social 16
Structure of the Dissertation 21
Writing Style 24

2 Opening the Box 27

2.1 Open-plan and Monospace 29
2.2 Which Space? Stability versus Flux 41
2.2.1 Space as Practice 45
2.2.2 Spacing: A Networked Space 49
2.3 Agency: Who else is acting? 52
2.4 Components of the Inquiry 56

3 The Case: The Sainsbury Centre for Visual Arts 63

3.1 Exploring the Building according to the Plans 65
3.1.1 A Single Volume 69
3.1.2 Zoning and Circulation 74
3.1.3 Construction and Conditioning 87
3.2 Perspectives on the Building as ... 91
3.2.1 ... a High-tech and Late Modern Museum Building 91
3.2.2 ... the First Public Commission of a Star Architect 95
3.2.3 ... a Piece of Art 99
3.3 Approaching the Building in Practice 103

4 In Practice I: Working-with 105

4.1 Taking a Walk: Introduction to the Guides 107
4.2 First Stop: Gallery 1 110
4.2.1 Two Building Parts? 111
4.2.2 Working with the Building 114
4.2.3 Flexibility: The Work of Many 115
4.3 Second Stop: East End Gallery 118
4.3.1 Defining in Relation 119
4.3.2 Unpredictable »Mediator« 121
4.4 Third Stop: Living Area 124
4.4.1 Stopover: A Connection to the Patio 125
4.4.2 In its »Script« Anti-Museum 127
4.4.3 Stability: The Work of Many 130
4.4.4 Heterogeneity in Practice 136
4.5 Conclusion: Connectivity in Spacing 142

5 In Practice II: Visiting 147

5.1 Sketching Experiences 149
5.2 Arriving 150
5.2.1 Facing Practicalities 156
5.2.2 Networks of Arrival 158
5.3 Exploring 160
5.3.1 Walking with the Objects 163
5.3.2 Looking down 166
5.4 Returning 170
5.5 Conclusion: Multiplicity and Experience 173

6 In Practice III: Lighting 177

6.1 Tracing the object 180
6.2 Opening up and Spreading 184
6.2.1 Who does the Light? 185
6.2.2 Letting the Light Show through 187
6.2.3 The Generosity of Light 189
6.3 Layering 200
6.3.1 Moving with Intensities 204
6.3.2 Light and Shadow 206
6.4 Monitoring and Rotating 209

6.4.1 Condition of Movement 211
6.4.2 The Controversy of Light 213
6.5 Conclusion: Spacing Devices 215

7 A new Dynamism in Architecture 219

7.1 Spacing the Monospace 222
7.2 The Building as an Actor 228
7.3 The Disappearance of the User 230
7.4 Architects amongst many Experts 231
7.5 Tracing an Architectural World in Flux: Some Methodological Reflections 233
7.6 When Space is never 'Completed' 236

Appendix 239

Building Details 239

List of Figures 241
List of Interviews 245
Bibliography 251